Contract Transparency

MARCH 2017

- Global tracker on host government practice and policy

- Research products (redactions coming next)

The screenshot shows a Google Sheets spreadsheet with data from March 2017. The columns represent various aspects of contract disclosure, such as 'Official mode of access', 'Disclose/Disclosure summary', 'Legal framework', 'Data attached', and 'Language of provision'. The rows list countries and regions, with colored boxes indicating specific practices. A legend on the right side of the sheet provides a key for these colors.

Nigeria's Oil and Gas Revenues:
Insights From New Company
Disclosures

Alexander Malden

Nigeria is one of the largest and oldest oil producers in Africa, with over 50 years of commercial extractive activity. Until recently, however, citizens within the country have not had sufficient information to hold companies or government entities accountable for billions of dollars of oil and gas revenues, nor to begin to assess the costs, benefits and management of the country's extractive activities.

Box 1. Summary of European and Canadian mandatory disclosure laws

Which companies must disclose?	Oil, gas or mining companies registered in or listed on a regulated stock exchange in Canada, the European Union or European Economic Area. <sup>1</sup>
What must they disclose?	Payments made to governments (including state owned enterprises) in relation to extractive activities. Payments should be attributed to projects where applicable. 1. Production entitlements 2. Taxes on income, production or profit 3. Royalties 4. Dividends 5. Separate discovery and production bonuses 6. Licence fees 7. Payments for infrastructure improvements
What is the threshold for payment reporting?	Single, or series of, payments that amount to EUR 100,000 in the EU/EEA or CAD 100,000 in Canada.
When must they disclose?	EU: The date of the first required report from a company depends on when the EU Member State enacted the relevant provisions of the European Accounting and Transparency Directives. Canada: The Extractive Sector Transparency Measures Act came into force on 1 June 2014 and applies to financial year starting after this date. Companies have 150 days after the end of their financial year to file their Payments to Governments Report. Norway (as an EEA country), its law ("Forskrift om land-for-lan rapportering") came into force on 1 January 2014 and applies to financial years beginning on or after this date.
What data exists so far?	The number of identified reporting companies by jurisdiction: EU: 130; Norway: 8; Canada: 700

NRGI National Oil Company Database

What?

- A compilation of data on 74 National Oil Companies using published financial statements and EITI reports.
- 80+ data variables on operational & financial data:
  - Exploration and production
  - Revenues and expenditures
  - Transfers to treasury

When?

- Currently finalizing data clean-up and web tool for publication in early 2019

Why?

- Taking advantage of growing information available and further demonstrating its value for public discourse
- Enhancing knowledge of role of NOCs globally and in-country
- Improving citizens' ability to benchmark performance

Global trends and tendencies example: NOCs occupy large fiscal space, with significant variation

Tool for in-country analysis example, comparison against peers

Caveats apply! Variance in geology, fiscal regime, etc. But valuable as a point of comparison and a basis for questions about the value NOCs are delivering.

Commodity trading transparency

- Guide on commodity trading transparency & data analysis on relevance to NOCs
- Supporting EITI “targeted effort” on trading transparency
- Facilitating linkages between EITI and other global trading-related initiatives (e.g. OECD)
